ABOUT US

Milkhouse Candle Company founders, Eric and Janet Sparrow, have strong ties to agricultural America. It's their Midwest upbringing that inspired the creation of a cleaner, healthier candle experience.

Starting off as a hobby for the couple in 2002, their candle making began in canning jars bought at local auctions. They shared their creations with friends, family, and co-workers, and suddenly they started getting more requests for candles.

Years after the original candles were produced, Milkhouse has grown into a thriving company that continues to produce soy and beeswax candles.

The Milkhouse blend of waxes is simple: pure beeswax and natural soy wax from soybeans grown in America's Midwest. No artificial dyes are added and there is no lead in the wicks. Our blend of waxes provides a safe and clean-burning alternative to paraffin candles.

We're committed to spreading the message that soy wax and beeswax are healthy alternatives to paraffin wax, but we can't do it alone. Thank you for joining us on our journey and helping us fill America's homes with clean-burning soy and beeswax candles!

Sincerely,
The Milkhouse Team

CANDLE CARE

Do not burn candles near anything that can catch fire. Keep candles out of reach of children and pets, and never leave a burning candle unattended. Keep burning candles away from drafts, vents, ceiling fans, and air currents. Always burn candles in a well-ventilated room.

For optimum performance, we recommend trimming wicks after each burn. When trimming wicks, extinguish the flame, let the candle cool, and trim the wick to 1/4 inch before relighting.

Extinguish candle after 3-4 hours of burn, or when the wax pool reaches the sides of the jar. Discontinue use of a candle when 1/2 inch of wax remains at the bottom of the jar. This will prevent possible heat damage to the counter/surface or the candle container itself. Our candles are not intended for outdoor use, and for optimum performance we recommend burning them indoors.
